SIX DOTS

Six dots: A Story of Young Louis Braille by Jen Bryant (921 BRA)

Reviewed by Ava Reiter (3rd grade) and Delainey Holum (3rd grade)

Louis Braille could see as a child, but went blind when he was five. Louis wanted to read more than anything. But when he went to a school for the blind in Paris, he discovered that there were almost no books for the blind. They used huge print that you had to feel with your fingers. It was so big, that a book like Junie B Jones would probably be 1000 pages. Read this book and find out how Louis Braille tried to make an alphabet using only six dots so that blind people could read lots of books!

Each Kindness by Jacqueline Woodson (E WOO)

Reviewed by Alani Jasper (3rd grade)

Have you ever been new to a school? Do you remember who welcomed you and who didn't? This book is about a girl named Chloe who doesn't welcome Maya, a new girl, to class because Maya doesn't seem to fit in. Chloe discovers that even little things that you do matter a lot to other people. This story makes you realize how to show kindness and why it matters.

Book: Owl Diaries: Eva and the New Owl by Rebecca Elliott (FIC ELL)

Reviewed by Madeline Madetzke (3rd grade)

This book is about an owl named Eva and her friend named Hailey. Since owls sleep during the day, Eva goes to school at night, and she can hear things that are very far away. Eva has a human side, too. She has to learn how to make new friends. This book will make you want to keep reading. The illustrations are interesting and Eva wins a prize for them!

Book: Captain Awesome Meets Super Dude! by Stan Kirby (FIC KIR)

Reviewed by Karter Hostetler (2nd grade)

Read about a super-hero who doesn't have super-powers! Captain Awesome is a kid who is really smart and uses a zip-line to get places faster and capture bad guys. He also has a hamster that helps him. This is an awesome series that will make you laugh. Sometimes the illustrations are funny and sometimes they are cool. I recommend this series!
